TEACHING WITH CREATIVITY IN THE CLASSROOM

Creativity is now considered an essential component of school education in Australia and around the world, and the Australian Curriculum now includes critical and creative thinking as one of its general capabilities. But research shows that teachers are challenged by both the definition and application of creativity in the classroom. What exactly is creativity in education? How is it defined? Can it be taught? Can it be assessed? What are the myths of creativity? In this workshop, Tim will look at how teachers can be more creative in their classroom practice, providing practical advice and strategies on how to develop creative capacity connected to the latest research in the field of creative education.

OBJECTIVES AND OUTCOMES

- Learn the definition of creative education.
- Ask: WHAT IS A CREATIVE TEACHER?
- Discover strategies for teaching with creativity in the classroom.

PLEASE NOTE:

- Participants will be provided with a link to a digital platform which will be used for this session.
- It is recommended that participants attend all three sessions.
- Participants will receive an online resource pack at the conclusion of Session 3 and remain enrolled in the online platform for two weeks following the conference.

TEACHING FOR CREATIVITY IN THE AUSTRALIAN CURRICULUM CLASSROOM

In Teaching for Creativity in the Australian Curriculum Classroom, the authors outline ways to adapt existing lessons and mandated curricula to encourage the development of student creativity alongside more traditional academic skills.

Based on cutting-edge psychological research on creativity, this revised Australian edition of the original text debunks common misconceptions about creativity, describes how learning environments can support both creativity and the Australian Curriculum, offers creative lessons and insights for teaching English and mathematics, and includes assessments for creativity and Australian Curriculum learning.

Featuring numerous classroom examples, this practical resource will empower teachers to think of the Australian Curriculum and creativity as encompassing complementary, rather than mutually exclusive, goals.
