Summary:

Why do some students simply “get it” when some just don’t? In this book, Betty K. Garner focuses on why students struggle and what teachers can do to help them become self-directed learners. Difficulty reading, remembering, paying attention or following directions are not the reasons students fail but symptoms of the true problem: underdeveloped cognitive structures. It’s by helping students to gather, organise and make sense of information; become cognitively engaged and motivated to achieve; and experience learning as a dynamic process, that we help struggling students break through hidden barriers and empower them with tools that last a lifetime.
