Summary:

The Adaptive School is about developing strong schools in which collaborative faculties are capable of meeting the certain challenges of today and the uncertain challenges of tomorrow. Focus areas in this book include: four hats of shared leadership, organisational and professional capacities, energy sources for high-performing groups, ways of talking, the seven norms of collaboration, working effectively with conflict.

This Learning Guide is intended as a resource to be used in the Adaptive Schools Foundation Seminar, and in follow up sessions. The Guide is based upon the previous five editions of the Adaptive Schools Syllabus, created by Robert Garmston and Bruce Wellman. Cross-references to The Adaptive School: A Sourcebook for Developing Collaborative Groups are made throughout this Guide.

In addition to including notes following the four-day seminar, there is also ample room for your own notetaking and journalling.
