Summary:

Explore the theories and leadership and implementation strategies behind educational reform and address the concerns that have led to the current school change movement. Specially designed for principals, administrators and school board members, this book features notable experts including Richard Elmore, Andy Hargreaves, Elizabeth City, Pedro A. Noguera, Carmel Crévola, Jim Knight and Ken Leithwood; provides practical implementation examples for tri-level reform; and looks at the essential role that hope and emotion can play in the change process. Confronting a complex issue with clarity and thoughtfulness, this collection shows educators that successful change efforts are possible in any school environment.
