Summary:

Changing whole education systems for the better, as measured by student achievement, requires coordinated leadership at the school, community, district and government levels. Based on Michael Fullan's work with school districts and systems in the United States, United Kingdom and Canada, this resource lays out a comprehensive action plan for achieving whole system reform. System-wide reform becomes possible when educational leaders build collective capacity and where teachers, schools and districts commit to working together to increase their effectiveness, rather than competing against one another. All Systems Go shows educators what must be done to move an entire system forward.
