Summary:

Students today are growing up in a digital world. As “digital natives”, they learn in new and different ways, and educators need new approaches to make learning both real and relevant for today’s students. This refreshing resource for teaching in the 21st century presents an intuitive and ground-breaking partnership model that promotes 21st-century student learning through technology.

Partnership pedagogy is a framework in which:

- Digitally literate students specialise in content finding, analysis and presentation via multiple media
- Teachers specialise in guiding student learning, providing questions and context, designing instruction and assessing quality
- Administrators support, organise and facilitate the process throughout the school
- Technology becomes a tool that students use for learning essential skills and “getting things done”

With numerous strategies, how-to’s, partnering tips and relevant web addresses as well as diagrams for easy reference, Teaching Digital Natives is a visionary yet practical book for preparing students to live and work in today’s globalised and digitalised world.
