Summary:

Assessment for Student Motivation helps educators understand why and how behaviour management defined the relationship between assessment and student motivation in schools for decades. It helps viewers understand why that vision no longer applies; contrast that vision of the assessment/motivation relationship with a new vision specifically designed for use in standards-driven schools; and understand why it is important to learn how to use student-involved classroom assessment for learning to keep students understanding the achievements targets and believing that success is within reach so that they will keep trying. This presentation is aligned to lessons in the book Classroom Assessment for Student Learning: Doing it Right – Using It Well.
