Summary:

Arial Black, written by well-known sportsman, philanthropist, author and motivational speaker Glenn Manton, comprises three intersecting short stories aimed at teenage readers. Glenn works extensively in secondary schools, giving him unique insights into the interests and concerns of today's teens, troubled and otherwise. These short, accessible tales encourage teenage students to read, and engage with questions of relationships, perceptions, love, destiny – and pizza. Complementary Reading Notes offer inspiration and practical exercises to help students express themselves in writing and tell their own stories.
