Summary:

If learners are provided with a diversity of thinking processes, outside of their usual subject disciplines, and these processes are introduced in relation to their associated learning jobs, cross-curricular thinking skills will be further promoted. Learners will then be empowered to select the right process, at the right time, to achieve. The Lane Clark thinktank learning process poster series is comprised of frameworks designed to facilitate this. Thinkitgreat is a framework that extends and refines the discovery of base characteristics, building on the earlier thinkit process. Set includes thinkitgreat poster, Processes for Thinking and Learning booklet, student sheet and criteria.
