Summary:

Bring relevance to social studies with these creative and thought-provoking activities that will get kids excited and so engaged that every one of them will sparkle in the classroom. The Bloom sheets in this book, based on Bloom's Revised Taxonomy, are organised to be used as class work with small groups, for enrichment or independent study, or as supplements in any class that focuses on social studies. They also make great out-of-school assignments. In addition, a raft of related imaginative activities and alternative ways to assess learning in the social studies are included. The fourth book in the Ignite series.
