Summary:

The trait-writing model allows teachers and students to focus on one element of writing at a time, thus breaking the task of learning to write effectively into manageable parts. The traits apply to a variety of writing styles and purposes. Most importantly, mastery of these traits gives students skills they can use for life.

Key selling points:

- The book is divided into the seven traits of writing, which include: ideas and content, word choice, fluency, voice, organisation, conventions and presentation.
- Provides interesting examples that relate to everyday life.
- Provides easy to use classroom activities.
- An answer key is provided at the end.

Supporting resources:

- Building Sentence Skills (TCM3704)
- If You're Trying to Teach Kids How to Write...You've Got to Have this Book (INA62500)
- Strategies for Writing Success (IFA19316)
