Summary:

This series of professional development kits offers unique, practical and much-needed resources for locally based staff development. They provide a true do-it-yourself experience for teachers, teams or departments seeking to improve their effectiveness in a particular aspect of curriculum or instruction.

This kit contains materials and activities to assist educators in their efforts to fully understand the middle years of teaching, and contains information on:

- helping students learn at high levels and demonstrate learning in multiple contexts
- meeting the intellectual, social, emotional, physical and psychological needs of students
- creating a positive, productive and energising climate in the school
- helping students achieve their potential.

The primary resources upon which this professional development kit is based are also available from Hawker Brownlow Education:
