Summary

Not every teacher has a dedicated coach who can support them in the classroom. Even those who do can benefit from additional ideas and support from a seasoned coach. Written by an experienced instructional technologist, this book is designed to help fill this role, showing teachers how to empower students to take charge of their own learning and provide creative and authentic opportunities for students to demonstrate their knowledge through projects.

With this book, teachers get the guidance they need to help students engage in learning experiences that allow them to reflect on their level of knowledge and what they need to learn, while exploring topics that correspond with their interests. Readers will learn to guide students in creating tutorial videos, providing peer reviews, curating their own resources, participating in debates and more.

The book:

- shows how to take the fear out of projects and presentations, while developing and managing authentic projects
- offers a blueprint for implementing high-quality strategies and lesson ideas, with practical resources to inspire students
- foregrounds pedagogy before tech, with activities highlighting a blend of hands-on learning and technology
- includes at least three thematically linked projects in every chapter, as well as examples from other educators who are modelling the ideas in the book.
