Summary

Start your day off right with quick, high-interest mathematics activities that provide students with purposeful and accessible mathematical-content practice.

Designed to be flexible enough for daily or weekly use, choose from different mathematical content strands, such as algebraic thinking, measurement, data, or geometry. Each section includes a whole-class introductory page followed by a paired-learning activity sheet and an independent-learning assessment. Each section culminates with written response questions that require students to revisit and integrate information from the mathematical topic they just studied.

The activities in Let's get this day started: Maths can be used to enhance students' mathematical understanding throughout the school year.
